BLOW TO REF'S DECISION

Boxing bosses have hit out at Strood ref Ian John-Lewis over his handling of Saturday's WBC heavyweight title fight.

The 47-year-old detention officer has been criticised for allowing the bout between reigning champion Vitali Klitschko and US challenger Shannon Briggs to go the distance.

On Sunday it was reported that the defeated Briggs had been taken to hospital suffering from fractured cheekbones, concussion and a torn left bicep.

MEDWAY MPs have taken their campaign for a cap on train price hikes to the Houses of Parliament.

Rochester and Strood representative Mark Reckless yesterday submitted an Early Day Motion which exposes the unique deal Southeastern Trains wangled with the previous Government.

The agreement allows Southeastern bosses to raise the price of regulated fares by RPI (retail price index) plus three per cent – three times more than other rail franchises can.

The contract has hit the pockets of hundreds of thousands of commuters across the South East.

Mr Reckless has worked alongside fellow Medway Tory MP Tracey Crouch and other Kent Conservatives to see the 'plus-three rule' scrapped. They hope to gain enough support from their peers to achieve their goal.

The Early Day Motion read: "That this House notes that Southeastern Trains enjoys a monopoly over rail travel into London from the suburbs of South East London and the commuter towns of Kent.

"That it further notes that under the previous government, Southeastern's franchise agreement with the Department for Transport has allowed increases on regulated fares of RPI+3 per cent as opposed to RPI+1 per cent for other rail franchises, which has resulted in a recently proposed fare rise of 7.8 per cent in January 2011.

"That it understands that franchise agreements with train operating companies are to be considered as part of the Comprehensive

Sister tells Treeby murder trial of 'two cartridge' threats

■ BY JOE BILL

A SISTER in the Jack Treeby murder trial told a court her elder brother had threatened to kill her and other family members.

Alison Treeby, of Princes Park, Chatham, told the jury that during a telephone call with defendant and brother, Bill Treeby, he threatened to give three of his relatives "two cartridges" each.

Alison also claimed Bill said wife Charity Treeby, another defendant, would also be "coming for you".

At Maidstone Crown Court on Monday, prosecutor Jonathan Higgs asked the witness to tell the court what was said in the phone call on Christmas Eve, 2009.

The conversation took place in a car park outside the Harrow pub in Lidsing after an argument between Jack Treeby and Bill Treeby's son, Billy Jnr.

Alison said: "I was in the car with Jack. I put the phone on loudspeaker so my brother could hear.

"I said, 'Why don't you sort it out, it looks as if the argument is going too far'. He [Bill] said, 'I'm not sorting nothing out, its two cartridges for the big boy', referring to Gary, 'two cartridges for Jack and the same again for Johnny'."

Alison continued: "I told him not to be stupid and sort it out differently.

JACK TREEBY: Chased down the street

He said, 'No, they can have it. You are not there anyway, are you?'

"I said, 'Yes, I am' and he said, 'I am going to bring Chart (Charity) for you.'"

The witness went on to describe her view of events at Quarry Road three days later, on December 27, 2009.

Having spoken to Bill once again on the phone, Alison then recalled the incidents leading up to the death of her brother, Jack.

When asked what she heard after the phone call, she said: "Screeching from cars and a lot of shouting. A Range Rover and a Mondeo turned left into Quarry Road, that's when all the shooting and screaming started."

The witness also described how she heard the voice of another defendant, George Treeby, who she said was 'hanging out of the window of the Range Rover wearing a balaclava and holding a gun'.

During cross-examination, Alison denied seeing either Gary or Jack with a weapon.

Defendants Bill Treeby, 50, his wife Charity, 51, and their sons Billy, 29, and George, 23, all deny murdering Jack Treeby, from Rainham.

Jack Treeby, 43, died after he was run over by a car. His brother, Gary Treeby, was also shot with a shotgun before being beaten with an iron bar.

Gary has recovered from his injuries and is expected to take the stand, as will witnesses to the alleged attack, which was partially caught on CCTV.

The four accused, from Queen Street, Paddock Wood, also face charges of attempted murder of the deceased's son, Jack Treeby Jnr.

A further charge of conspiracy to kill another family member, John Treeby, is also faced by the family.

During the evening of December 27, 2009, a Range Rover drove into Quarry Road and smashed into a number of vehicles including that of the deceased, Jack Treeby.

It is alleged that Jack Treeby was then chased down the street, run over and crushed by the Range Rover.

The case continues.

Union campaign and march against cuts

UNION members will today (Wednesday) launch an anti-cuts campaign in response to Chancellor George Osborne's austerity measures.

The protest has been organised by the Medway Trades Union Council.

Spokesman Andrew Travers said: "It wasn't ordinary people who created this crisis, it was the banks. We will not be forced to pay for the cost of this crisis. The Government needs to invest in public services, creating jobs and training schemes for the unemployed."

A protest march will begin outside Medway Council's Gun Wharf headquarters at noon, ending at The Paddock.

A rally will be held at the Command House, Chatham, from 7.30pm, with speakers including MTUC and Unison leaders.

Tip-off leads police to cannabis factory

A CANNABIS factory has been smashed by police.

The drugs den was uncovered at a property in Dale Street, Chatham, on Thursday, last week, after a tip-off. More than 400 plants were found in five converted rooms.

It is estimated the haul had a street value of £50,000. A 26-year-old man was arrested at the scene.

Sgt Alex Bain said: "I would like to thank the community for providing information in relation to this address. We are grateful for the details people provide to ensure that cannabis factories such as this are shut down. Residents reporting any suspicions to Kent Police will be taken seriously."

Anyone with information about suspected drug activity is asked to call 01622 690690 or Crimesoppers, anonymously, on 0800 555111.

Injured lad plucked from river after fall

A SCHOOLBOY was just minutes away from drowning after plunging 15ft onto the riverside.

The 14-year-old fell onto boulders near the water's edge after coming off his bike on a path in Ferry Road, Halling, at about 2pm on Saturday.

He suffered multiple injuries – including broken bones – and was at risk of drowning as the tide came in.

Paramedics and firefighters were scrambled to the scene and plucked the stricken boy out of the water with minutes to spare.

Strood Watch manager Ian Simpson said: "When we arrived he was quickly becoming submerged so we had crews supporting him while paramedics assessed his condition.

"We managed to get him out using a stretcher and a ladder and he was taken to hospital with his mum. We were all quite relieved."

Homes are seven times average wage in towns

■ BY STEVE KNIGHT

FIRST-time buyers are still struggling to get a foothold on Medway's property ladder, with house prices standing at more than seven times the local average wage.

According to a new report by the National Housing Federation, the average cost of a home in the towns stands at £157,449.

The county outlook makes for even bleaker reading, with houses costing more than ten times the average income in Canterbury, Ashford and Thanet.

Sevenoaks was named the least affordable town in Kent – and seventh in the whole of the South East – with the average price of £359,921 being almost 15 times the average income.

Warren Finney, regional manager for the NHF, said: "Housing need across the South East is reaching desperate levels and Kent is no exception."

"With the Government bringing in sweeping changes, the axing of regional spatial strategies and the challenges of the economic climate, the emphasis is increasingly being placed on local authorities to ensure housing needs in their areas are being properly assessed and met."

"We are calling on central government to continue to invest in affordable housing and are urging local authorities throughout Kent to keep it high on their agenda."

"It's vital they continue to work with their local housing associations to ensure the supply of affordable homes doesn't dry up."

EBBING TIDE: Housing at St Mary's Island, Chatham. The home ownership dream seems further out of reach for many first-time buyers in Medway

Kent County Council's cabinet member for regeneration and economic development, Cllr Kevin Lynes, admitted the lack of affordable housing was a cause for concern.

He said: "The onus is on district councils to set the levels for the provision of affordable housing, but what we are doing as part of our regeneration framework is working alongside them to develop a new housing strategy."

"We are working on a raft of different models and trying to come up with some innovative approaches, but one of the difficulties is that because the recession has been so deep and prolonged, there's an awful lot of housing providers who just don't exist anymore."

"But we've had a removal of top-down housing strategies like the South East Plan, and the district and borough councils seem to be responding well to that now."

The latest Government projections suggest almost 40,000 new households will form in the South East every year to 2031.

The NHF says the lack of affordable housing has led to a 10.4 per cent increase in the number of Kent people turning to social housing over the last five years, with more than 29,000 families now on waiting lists.

Brian Johnson, chief executive of the Dartford-based social housing provider Moat, said: "In these tough economic times it is important local authorities and central government work with housing associations so that together we can meet the urgent need for affordable housing while at the same time making the necessary efficiencies that the Comprehensive Spending Review will demand."

Rail fares battle

Spending Review and calls on the Government to apply a cap on fare rises for Southeastern that is henceforth no greater than for other franchises, to ensure that the financial burden no longer falls disproportionately on the 400,000 passengers who rely on Southeastern to travel to work."

Rail watchdog Passenger Focus has campaigned against the 'plus-three rule' for years. Kent spokesman Tunde Olatunji called for the suspension of the deal and for Southeastern to offer more affordable ways to pay for season tickets, such as direct debit.

He said: "We know Southeastern's fare regime is unfair for Kent passengers. This is compounded by the economic situation. A lot of passengers fear for their job security and are finding it difficult to access mortgages and credit. Budgets are under strain and this system does not take that into account."

When the issue of the 'plus-three rule' has been put to Southeastern by this paper on previous occasions, a spokesman said: "No-one likes having to pay more and fare increases are unpopular. But Government policy is to recoup more of the cost of rail travel from those who use it, rather than relying on the taxpayer."

Bookies robber jailed

A BOOKIES bandit has been jailed for more than five years after admitting carrying out two raids.

Corey Graham, of Balmoral Road, Gillingham, struck at the town's William Hill in April, this year, and a Rochester Coral branch the following month.

The 33-year-old pointed an imitation firearm at terrified staff to force them to hand over cash. He was caught after clothing linked to the Rochester robbery provided a DNA match. He was arrested on June 2 and charged. Graham pleaded guilty and was sentenced at Maidstone Crown Court on Friday.

City status campaign wins KCC backing, but our readers say 'no'

MEDWAY Council's city status bid has been given a big thumbs down by our online readers. We asked visitors to our yourmedway and kentnews websites if they support the proposals – and just one in five respondents clicked 'yes'.

More than 1,200 readers – 80 per cent – were against the plans. Peter Cook was among those who attacked the proposals.

Writing on yourmedway.co.uk, he said: "The people have spoken. Time for Medway to do what they should have done in the first place and do a proper consultation about the decision, rather than making one and then spending taxpayers' money on a marketing campaign to bludgeon us into accepting the decision taken in 'The Chamber of Secrets'."

"TheMedwayBlogger" added: "The council's arrogance and their 'we know what's best' attitude is at the centre of all they do."

"Their high-handedness in not consulting on city status will haunt them throughout their ill-informed campaign."

Medway Council's city status bid will compete against those from rival towns across the UK in 2012, the Queen's Diamond Jubilee year.

The unitary authority's application has this week been backed by Kent County Council.

KCC leader Cllr Paul Carter said: "I fully support this bid for city status. Medway's status will be enhanced as a place to visit, live and do business with."

"It will also set it apart from many other authorities, by making it even more of a 'place' rather than just a series of towns."

"It should also help shoehorn further investment to continue the regeneration already taking place that is improving the lives of local people."

CITY LIFE: Will Rochester regain its city status as part of Medway?

Medway Council leader Cllr Rodney Chambers said: "I'm pleased KCC supports our bid for city status. This really shows how this area has changed and indicates that this bid is about the future."

"In the last few decades Medway has seen huge regeneration, increased transport links, a growth in skilled workers and the arrival of four universities with 10,000 students."

"This is the largest conurbation in the South East outside London. To get KCC's backing and public support for our bid to turn Medway into a city is very important."

Taxpayers left to pick up cost as mistakes at the fuel pump end up costing £40,000

BUNGLING emergency service workers and careless council employees have cost Kent taxpayers more than £40,000 in the last three years by putting the wrong fuel in their cars.

Kent Police were the biggest culprits for mis-filling vehicles, clocking up a staggering 109 failed fuel attempts since 2008. That equates to a mistake every six days and a cost to the public of £13,010.

Dozy drivers from the South East Coast Ambulance Service (SECAMB) and Kent Fire and Rescue Service (KFRS) also made the silly servicemen list. SECAMB workers were guilty of 78 fuelling mishaps, costing £11,000, while KFRS officers had 12 pump problems, wasting £3,594 of vital funding.

EXCLUSIVE

BY JOE BILL

Kent County Council staff members mis-fuelled to the tune of £10,254 while Maidstone Borough Council workers had two blunders.

Emma Boon, from the Taxpayers' Alliance, said: "Mistakes do happen, but it is quite shocking the same mistake is being repeated and is costing taxpayers so much money.

"A cheap and easy solution to prevent this from happening would be for the organisations to stick a label on the petrol cap, like many firms do with company cars, to make it very clear to the driver which type of fuel should be used. This is needless waste that can be reduced with a simple measure."

Each of the services was asked under the Freedom of Information Act to outline how many times vehicles had been filled up with the wrong fuel and how much it cost to have the resulting problems sorted.

A Kent Police spokesman played down the mistakes, saying: "Kent Police has 1,197 vehicles in its fleet which travelled 20 million miles during the 2009/2010 financial year.

"In this time period there were 73,125 financial transactions for fuel purchases of which 63, or 0.09 per cent, involved cars that were filled with the wrong fuel. In the last two years, the force implemented a diesel only policy to reduce fuel costs and the production of carbon emissions, saving the force £500,000 per year.

"While the number of cars being fuelled incorrectly is small, the force is committed to reducing this figure further."

Liz Spiers, from the SECAMB NHS Trust, said: "While taking our responsibility towards the taxpayer extremely seriously, the cost of misfuelling needs to be taken into context of number of journeys the Trust undertakes and our overall vehicle maintenance budget."

KCC's corporate support chief Roger Gough said: "Quite clearly all these incidents are due to human error. Looking at the statistics, of the £10,254.83 repair bill over the three and a half year period analysed, individuals with lease cars were responsible for repairs totalling nearly £8,000.

"All these repairs were paid for by the individuals, not the council, as agreed in their lease contracts. The 12 remaining incidents, costing £2,287.96, were paid for by Kent County Council."

Roadside mechanics The AA have released figures estimating that more than 150,000 people in the UK put the wrong fuel in their tanks every year.

SHE'S NO UGLY BETTY

TAKE a look at Betty - the prize-winning, grass-munching Guinea pig.

The cute photograph of the furry four-month-old pet took second place in PDSA's nationwide picture competition.

Owner Sian Franks, from Chatham, was delighted to claim the runner-up prize.

"I'm thrilled this picture of Betty has been recognised in PDSA's pet photo competition," she said.

PDSA bosses launched their search for the most photogenic four-legged and feathered friends earlier this year, calling on animal-lovers to submit snaps of their posing pets.

Hundreds of entries were submitted to PDSA's charity stores across the country and on its website.

PDSA spokesperson Lisa Nickless said: "It's obvious the British public absolutely adore their pets. Thanks to everyone who entered and generously gave PDSA a donation. The money raised by the competition will help us care for sick and injured pets across the UK."

Sian received a PDSA goodie bag.

Renaissance team facing the axe

COUNCIL chiefs were yesterday expected to axe the Medway Renaissance team as part of on-going cost-cutting measures.

The regeneration unit's future was due to be discussed at Medway Council's cabinet on Tuesday afternoon.

An in-depth report written ahead of the meeting revealed that central Government funding for the 18-man team was due to end in March, 2011, and there was no indication any more cash would be made available.

This would force Medway Council to pick up the £1 million annual cost of running the Renaissance department.

Regeneration boss Robin Cooper said: "The unit has contributed greatly to the success of Medway and its achievements cannot be underestimated. Without funding, and with significantly declining council funding over the next four years, there is no realistic prospect of maintaining the unit."

The report recommended consulting with staff and trade unions on the proposal to close the team from March 31, 2011. Redundancy costs have been estimated in the region of £200,000 which are likely to be met by the forecasted underspend of the directorate.

Medway Renaissance was set up in 2005.

During the past three years the department has had a hand in developments such as Medway Park, Rochester Riverside and Chatham Waterfront.

A ROAD-breaker worth £40,000 has been stolen from a building site at MidKent College in Rochester.

Roman coins hoard declared 'treasure'

■ BY JOE BILL

A HOARD of Roman coins discovered on the outskirts of Medway has been officially declared as treasure.

A total of 4,653 copper-alloy coins dating back to the 4th Century AD were found during a dig at a recreational ground in Snodland.

The coins, known today as nummus, were inscribed with the words 'happy times are here again', in Latin.

Historians believe that this motto was referring to Romans celebrating the 1,100th anniversary of the founding of Rome.

The find was made by Mathew Bulmer on behalf of Archaeology South East, ahead of a proposed housing development for the area in 2006.

The coins, which contain traces of silver, were found using geo-technical machinery on the site owned by Smuft Kappa Paper UK.

At an inquest in the Archbishop's Palace, Maidstone, Coroner Roger Sykes was able to determine that the find was deemed to be treasure.

KCC's finds liaison officer, Jennifer

TREASURE: The 4,653 Roman coins were unearthed at a recreation ground in Snodland, which was being prepared for a housing development

Jackson, explained that under the 1996 Treasure Act, any hoard of more than 10 coins dating back further than 300 years is deemed as a treasure.

Therefore the finder has to offer the item for sale to a museum at a price set by an independent board of experts.

Miss Jackson said: "These coins are from the 4th Century. This is a large find for Kent but not uncommon."

Two finds of 10 coins in 2008 and 16 coins in 2009 were found on the site again by Archaeology South East.

The British Museum was consulted to properly diagnose the finds and this week Coroner Roger Sykes confirmed that all of the coins were part of the same hoard and declared as treasure.

He said: "I am satisfied that the antiquity of the coins and their number constitutes treasure. I am also satisfied that the subsequent finds were part of the same hoard."

"I will be sending confirmation to the British Museum. Now procedures of acquiring the finds can be made by Maidstone Museum to the finders and to those who clearly have an interest."

QUESTION & ANSWER

PAUL BURLING

Q & A

Q Why do you like performing at the Central Theatre?

A I love the support of the Medway people, they really show they enjoy panto. And the staff and crew are great – so supportive.

Q You are from Bristol, but is Medway is your second home?

A I live in Bristol, but I'm a Hertfordshire boy, born and bred. I've travelled a bit with my work, but can safely say Medway is my second and Christmas home.

Q What got you into doing impressions?

A It's something that I've always done. I loved cartoons as a child and just copied them. It went on from there.

Q What prompted you to enter Britain's Got Talent?

A I was in the first series in 2007. I got to the 'reveal' stage, but didn't get through to the semi finals, which knocked my confidence a bit. Friends kept saying I should give it another go, so I applied online this year and luckily it worked out this time.

Q How nerve-wracking was it?

A Quite scary, because being a comedy act you're relying on the audience finding you funny. The audition was amazing – 3,000 people giving me a standing ovation. The semi-final was nerve-wracking, but in the end it felt great. The final was the most scared I've ever been. Rehearsals had gone badly and I thought I'd mess up in front of 19 million viewers. Luckily, I got it right on the night.

Q Which judge did you most want to impress?

A All of them. But if I had to pick one it would be Simon Cowell.

Q Harry Hill phoned you after your first performance.

A Yes, how cool was that? He was on holiday in Spain at the time of my semi-final. The next day the phone rang and a voice said, 'This is Harry Hill'. He was great, saying his family loved what I did with TV Burp. He was one of the first people to text after my final spot. Hopefully we can work together in future. Watch this space.

Q How did you feel about getting to the final?

A Incredible. I'm proud to be the first proper stand-up comedy act ever to get there.

Q How has life changed since then?

A People recognise me in the street, I'm doing interesting gigs – performing to the England cricket team – and I have a bit of money in the bank for a change.

Q What made you decide to return to Medway for panto?

A Because the people of Medway have always been great to me, so I wanted to give something back to the area and the great support that everyone at Evolution Productions and the Central Theatre have given me over the years. Also I get to work with my great friends Phil Gallagher and Quinn Patrick again.

Q Have you been in Jack and The Beanstalk before?

A Yes in Weston-super-Mare in 2001/02 and for Evolution Productions in Stevenage 2008/09. I think its because I make the giant look even bigger.

Q Will your family be coming to see the show?

IMPROVEMENTS: Rochester Cathedral

Grant will improve cathedral access

ROCHESTER Cathedral has secured a £657,000 grant to refurbish its historic crypt.

A new lift will allow disabled visitors access to the crypt and quire levels.

Work will also be carried out to improve the South entrance while new flooring, renewed electrics and lighting will also be installed.

Dean of Rochester, Adrian Newman, said: "This will significantly enhance people's enjoyment of a unique and special part of this wonderful cathedral."

"For the first time in its long history, Rochester Cathedral will be fully accessible to everyone, whatever their level of mobility."

The funding was made available by The Colyer-Fergusson Trust.

Chairman Jonathan Monckton said: "The Trustees are delighted to be able to support Rochester Cathedral."

"Trustees wish the Dean and the Cathedral community every success in moving forward with this project and strengthening the role of the Cathedral at the heart life in Rochester."

Chip pan fire sets light to kitchen

A KITCHEN blaze broke out at a Walderslade home last week when a pan of hot oil ignited.

The fire took hold at the Beechmore Drive property at 7.26pm on Tuesday, October 12 after a woman left the pan on the heat then left the room.

She returned after hearing her smoke alarm and found the oil had ignited and spread to the kitchen units and ceiling.

Firefighters had extinguished the blaze by 7.51pm.

Medway's White Watch manager, Peter Coughlan, said: "Care needs to be taken in the kitchen as a moment of distraction can quickly lead to a major blaze."

"This fire once again highlights the importance of having working smoke alarms on every floor of your home, and that you test the batteries regularly – they really could save your life."

Pizza development axed over smells

CONTROVERSIAL plans to build a new development in Rainham have been rejected amid fears of bad smells and antisocial behaviour.

Developers, Boundwell Ltd, had hoped to include a Domino's pizza takeaway in the new two-storey building proposed for London Road, which was also to include two first-floor flats and a shop.

These plans have been scuppered, however, after a report from a planning inspector from Medway Council found that the proposal would affect the living conditions of current residents.

The report states: "The council considers that the proposal would be detrimental to these interests specifically by virtue of additional noise and disturbance, anti social behaviour and smells."

Vicious train thugs jailed

■ BY SIMON ROBINSON

TWO train thugs who attacked a passenger for refusing to hand over his laptop have been jailed for nearly four years.

Robert Durkan, 20, of Luton Road, Chatham, and Aaron Reed, 19, of Grosvenor Road, Kennington, Ashford, launched the savage attack on a train between Meopham and Rochester at midnight on Monday, February 15.

Both men rained down punches on the laptop's owner and his friend after they put the expensive computer out of the attackers' reach.

Durkan even took an empty bottle from his back pocket and swung it at the victim, narrowly missing his intended target and smashing it onto the wall behind.

The men were jailed at Maidstone Crown Court on Monday, October 11, after pleading guilty to attempted robbery.

The court heard how Durkan and Reed approached the two passengers as they sat together watching a DVD on the laptop before making crude comments about them.

Reed then tried to snatch the laptop. When his botched robbery attempt was easily foiled, the thugs hit out at the victims.

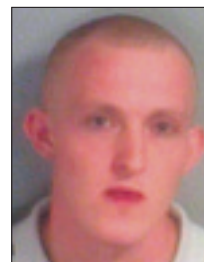

As the train approached Rochester, Reed kicked one of the victims a final time before both he and Durkan left the train and fled the station.

They were arrested at British Transport Police's Ashford station a few months later after attending for an unconnected matter.

When questioned by detectives, both Durkan and Reed provided answers of "no comment" to all questions posed to them and they were later charged with attempted robbery.

Durkan was jailed for two years, while Reed was jailed for 22 months.

Detective Sergeant Leigh Marshall, the investigating officer, said: "Acting like nothing

BULLIES: Durkan and Reed were jailed for the attack more than a pair of bullies, Durkan and Reed thought they could simply get away with snatching the victim's laptop and resorted to violence when the victims resisted.

"I hope the prison sentences handed down to this pair send out a clear message that such unprovoked and wanton violence will not be tolerated by the police or the courts."

New head's vow at awards night

TOP students at Rainham School for Girls were honoured at the annual presentation evening.

The night was the first major event for new headteacher Karen Roberts and saw the presentation of 145 awards to students in all years, watched by parents, staff and school governors.

Ms Roberts congratulated pupils from all year groups for their hard work and commitment.

She spoke of the "absolute desire of students to achieve" and vowed that the staff would "make sure the girls' aspirations become reality".

The head also commented on how impressed she was with the students' attitude and focus on learning and looked forward to leading the school to even greater success.

Impressive

In a year when the school recorded some of its strongest results ever, the 11 girls who received overall achievement awards at GCSE level earned an impressive 68 A and A* grades between them.

The statistics continued to impress at A-level with 76 per cent of those gaining achievement awards all receiving now lower than a B grade.

To mark the occasion, the students were visited by former deputy head girl and Cambridge University graduate Sarah Mason.

She enthused about the role the school played in her education and told the pupils that Rainham School for Girls had provided her "with the opportunity to succeed".

Future is an open book for young generation

■ BY DAN COLOMBINI

PUPILS from a Rochester school helped to launch a new book aimed at encouraging youngsters to learn about their local area.

Students at St William of Perth Roman Catholic Primary are the first children in Medway use The Big Book and attended the Medway Innovation Centre to showcase their work.

The Big Book covers a range of issues from eco-friendly ways to travel and the importance of looking after wildlife and the natural habitat. It also contains activities as well as facts and photographs of developments in Kent and Medway.

Engaging

Cllr Jane Chitty, Medway Council's portfolio holder for strategic development, said: "The Big Book is a great way of engaging young people and children with local development and importance of building communities that are sustainable and benefit everyone."

"Medway's regeneration programme is helping to transform the area, bringing with it a range of exciting opportunities."

"It's important that young people understand the changes that are happening and can get involved with how their community will be shaped."

The Big Book programme is available to every school in Medway and will last for a

Leon Jenkins, director of Gateway Knowledge Alliance who led on the development of The Big Book, said: "It provides an excellent foundation for young people to learn about the regeneration project in Medway.

"I'm looking forward to hearing from the young people who have already made use of it and hope children learning about sustainable living at a young age will engage with its principles and put them into practice throughout their lives."

developing confidence and individual talents

Looking for a small and caring school where developing confidence and individual talents is part of school life?

At Dover College, be it in our Infant and Junior or Senior school, we believe in strong moral values and respect for one another. Our small class sizes, from pre-reception to the Sixth Form, ensure pupils get individual attention. As a school, we are keen as any to cater for the most able pupils and do it well. However, a recent school inspection highlighted our great ability as a school to enable our more average pupils to achieve far better than their potential suggested on entry. Many of them surprise their parents and, more importantly themselves with their achievements.

Our next Open Morning will be a great opportunity for you and your family to meet our pupils, teachers and Headmaster.

Is your 10 year old worthy of a scholarship?

Our 11+ Scholarship Trials are designed to identify gifted and talented pupils in Sport, Art, Music or Academic Subjects.

91% of parking fines are overturned

HUNDREDS of parking fines issued by "ticket-happy" town halls for petty infringements are being overturned by independent traffic adjudicators.

Figures released by the Traffic Penalty Tribunal Adjudication Service showed in some areas of Kent and Medway up to 91 per cent of drivers contesting Penalty Charge Notices were successful in 2008-09.

The traffic tribunal looks at cases where drivers have received a parking ticket and contested it with the council and lost.

Motorists are then able to appeal to the tribunal where independent lawyers consider the evidence and decide whether the charge should be upheld.

Areas with the highest number of tickets overturned in 2008-09 included Medway, where 91 per cent of cases – 328 of the 360 cases – were dropped and the motorist let off.

In Maidstone, 114 of 126 cases – 90 per cent – saw drivers win their appeals, and in Gravesham, 66 per cent – 56 out of 85 – were successful. In Sevenoaks, although only 20 cases were referred to the independent adjudicators, 19 of them were overturned.

Ian Taylor, Kent spokesman for the Association of British Drivers, said there were some draconian councils that were taking the matter too far.

"Some councils are being very ticket-happy and this shows with the number being overturned," he said.

A Medway Council spokesman argued that the parking measures supported the authority's pledge to reduce congestion and make the area's roads safer to use.

"The vast majority of parking restrictions have been asked for by Medway residents, schools or traders, who are concerned about illegal and inconsiderate parking and their associated safety issues."

■ BY MARIJKE COX

Figures for Medway showed in 231 cases of the 360, the council failed to contest the appeal once it went to the traffic tribunal.

The spokesman said: "Medway Council take any mitigating circumstances provided by the motorist into serious consideration, which has had an impact on the number of tickets that are not contested."

"We have also been much more lenient as we were the first authority to use CCTV enforcement outside London and understood that residents would need some time to adjust to this."

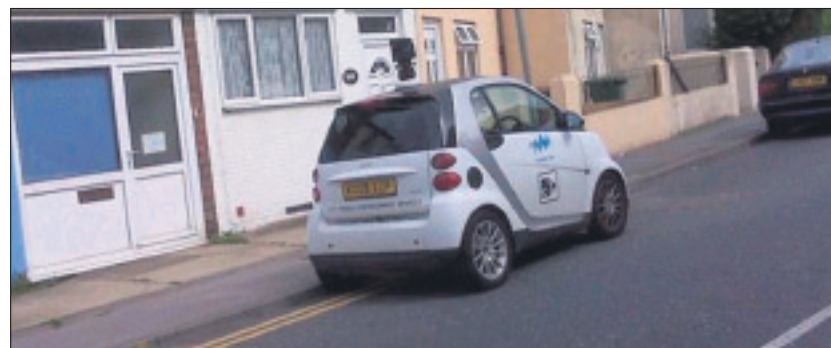

The spokesman said Medway Council pays for an independent adjudication service and is happy to abide by and respect its decision.

"Anyone who feels they have been given a Penalty Charge Notice incorrectly should contact the council in the first instance," he said. "If the appeal is rejected, a further appeal can be made to the Traffic Penalty Tribunal Adjudication Service, which is independent of the council. Its decision is final and binding for both parties."

A spokesman at Sevenoaks Council defended the 95 per cent of cases overturned.

"Out of 9,305 Penalty Charge Notices issued, only 20 were referred to the Traffic Penalty Tribunal by motorists, which indicates the vast majority of notices issued were done so correctly," he said.

For Gravesham, which saw 66 per cent of tickets scrapped, a spokesman said many cases were not contested due to evidence supplied on the appeal which had not been available previously to the council.

Teacher brings shame on rest of profession

What kind of teacher asks a pupil if they want to make babies?

This man deserves to be locked up instead of simply being given a slap on the wrist.

I think it is astonishing that the now suspended Mr de Groot denied the charge in light of the evidence against him, and then did not even bother attending the General Teaching Council hearing.

It is teachers like Mr de Groot that give the profession a bad name.

Those who abuse their position to attract impressionable, young pupils are quite simply twisted.

A two-year suspension?

This man should be banned from teaching for life.

Our Simon Robinson covers up his youthful good looks and adopts the 'gringo' look for charity...

Paying lip service to 'Movember' movement

NEXT month hundreds of thousands of men will set their facial hair free for charity.

The four-week Movember fundraiser, which takes its name from the fusion of 'Mo', a slang term for moustache, and November, the month, will see the oft-ridiculed 'tache make a rousing comeback on the top lips of proud participants around the world.

And not a moment too soon, either. For the moustache is at real risk of going into extinction.

The disgraceful descent of the top lip turf began in the 90s and has seen thousands of moustache-wearing men axe their wiry whiskers.

Sadly, these days the noble moustache is misunderstood and utterly underrepresented.

But it wasn't always the case. The heady days of the 80s saw bigshots such as Tom Selleck and Des Lynam champion the cause.

Liverpool FC legend Mark Lawrenson was one of a plethora of football pros who rocked a thick 'tache throughout the decade.

Graeme Souness, Terry McDermott, Chris Kamara, Ruud Gullit and David Seaman were also in the under-nose combing club.

Now Lawrenson, retired, 'tacheless and redundant, is reduced to a role of 'smug know-it-all pundit' (read git) on Match of the Day. It could have all been very different had you maintained the moustache, Lawro.

So where did it all go wrong?

I blame the rise of male grooming in the 90s. Clean-cut celebrities like David Beckham promoted a waxed, moisturising metrosexual image of man.

This hair-gelled, Lynx reeking ideal all but ended the glorious golden era of the moustache.

But thanks to the rise of the Movember movement, the 'tache is making a comeback, albeit for only 30 days a year.

Last year, more than 250,000 entrants across the globe took part in the charity event, raising £26 million for various cancer charities.

November 2010 looks like drawing more moustache-missing men to the cause.

So you can expect to see 'taches wherever you turn.

Your bank manager could be sporting the 'handlebar'. Your bus driver could opt for the 'gringo'.

Admittedly, the 'Hitler' is less likely to make a resurgence, but every movement – including the moustache – is allowed a blot on its copy book, surely?

I am proud to say that I will be among the Movember fundraisers and have already committed to a somewhat unkempt moustached 'look', which my loved ones despise. To sponsor me please visit www.justgiving.com/KOSmovember.

Unions or bankers – the choice is yours

Martin Clarke (Letters, October 6) must suffer dreadfully having had his holiday plans wrecked by the unions. How often, may I ask?

He rather underestimates the damage done by Labour – they seem to have wrecked the economies of almost all the world's nations.

To be 'ruled by unions' may not be the choice of everybody, even though their bosses are democratically elected by the membership, ordinary people, including many who have had the benefit of free tertiary education, thereby attaining professional qualifications and the salaries that go with them.

I belong to one such union, composed of engineers, scientists, chemists and many others.

Then again, many would not choose to be ruled by the products of Eton and Harrow, where money bought them an easy passage through university into bonus-bound City jobs, with tax-breaks galore.

Since our choice of rulers is limited, what would people prefer – unions or bankers?

A clean solution to this nuclear mess

Mrs Thatcher's privatisation policy caused the energy industry's break-up; before then, the Central Electricity Generating Board had 25 per cent surplus capacity.

Lack of forward planning since, and huge increase in electricity consumption, has (as Mr Farage rightly points out) left us with a problem.

However, nuclear has always formed the most heavily subsidised electricity production. Nuclear fuel (now fast becoming in short supply) has to be imported and it is difficult to extract. Nuclear has a base-load function and not, as Mr Farage claimed, "back-up".

The disposal of radioactive and contaminated waste is un-resolved, and has never been fully costed.

Nuclear, with its extreme operating temperatures and pressures, is inherently dangerous; why else were all the AGR reactors sited as remotely as possible?

Dungeness and the Romney

Marsh area were very sparsely populated prior to the coming of the power stations.

Being so low-lying, inhabitants are right to be concerned about global-warming.

History shows it to have been vulnerable to storms in the past.

We have been very slow to tackle our energy crisis and to take advantage of our wealth of natural resources: all of which are clean.

They have no transport costs, no storage problems and do not present a potential danger.

A third 'C' station might create a few more jobs, but green energy and self-sufficiency are likely to produce more.

And, one can't have vulnerable nuclear power stations adjacent to an international airport.

Ted Prangnell, by email

Farage reacting in entirely wrong way

When I said in a TV debate with Nigel Farage the UK has the best offshore wind resources of any country in Europe and that there was no reason why these should not be exploited, he had no answer.

Since a leaked government report indicates Dungeness is being dropped from the Government's preferred list of nuclear sites, Mr Farage's promotion of a Dungeness C station has already failed.

But there is a more serious problem in the claims made in his letter. Wind farms obtain money from government when they are operating, not before.

The major energy companies have told the Government they want it to pay for new nuclear power stations – the Government has refused.

So even if the Dungeness site were selected for a new nuclear power station apparently no-one wishes to pay for it to be built.

Wind farms like the new one off Thanet and the proposed London Array will create jobs, but the efficiency of the technology means there will be very few of them.

However, if we had a national programme of improving insulation for all buildings and installing microgeneration technologies (solar water heating/solar PV panels) on homes and buildings this would generate employment in every district in Kent and indeed in the UK as a whole.

If Mr Farage is serious about obtaining more employment in the energy sector then why has he failed to advocate energy efficiency and safe, renewable energy technologies – preferring instead the polluting, costly and problematic coal and nuclear options?

And nuclear is more expensive than any other energy technology because nuclear waste has to be stored for up to 250,000 years.

Help keep memory of the 'Few' alive

Your story in last week's Yourmaidstone highlighted the chart success of the Reach for the Skies album, released to coincide with the 70th anniversary of the Battle of Britain.

This well-deserved success by the Central Band of the RAF highlights the amazing public response to the events this summer that have commemorated the heroism and bravery of the men and women who defended these shores in 1940.

The Battle of Britain Memorial Trust, which looks after the memorial at Capel-le-Ferne, near Folkestone, wants to make sure their sacrifice is not forgotten when the men known as Churchill's 'Few' are no longer with us.

To do that, the Trust has drawn up plans for an education and visitor centre to be built at the site so that future generations will be able to get a taste of what it was like to have fought in arguably the most important battle of the 20th century.

These veterans will not be around forever.

Their memories can live on at Capel-le-Ferne, but only with the help of your readers and others in raising the £650,000 needed for this new education centre.

To help, please send a cheque payable to: The Battle of Britain Memorial Trust to PO Box 337, West Malling, ME6 9AA.

Chronic pain hurts more in some areas than in others

■ BY STEVE KNIGHT

PATIENTS suffering from chronic pain conditions have been warned they face discrimination depending on what side of the county they live.

While those residing in the east of Kent have access to a range of services close to their homes, those in the west are often required to travel miles to receive the help they need.

The matter was discussed at last week's meeting of Kent County Council's health overview and scrutiny committee, when it was revealed that some NHS West Kent patients have to access services as far away as the UCL hospital in central London.

Discrimination

Neither Maidstone Hospital nor Darent Valley Hospital has any facilities for dealing with chronic pain, whereas all three of NHS Eastern and Coastal Kent's main hospitals provide some sort of service in addition to several other smaller clinics.

Lib Dem councillor Dan Daley (Maidstone Central) told the meeting: "The difference between the delivery in the east and west shows up more of a discrimination for the population because the numbers of pain opportunities in east Kent are many whereas in west Kent they are few.

"There's nothing for people in Maidstone yet we've had promise after promise and I'm disappointed to see it's still under discussion."

Sufferers of chronic pain in Maidstone currently have the option of attending clinics at Sevenoaks Hospital or Pembury Hospital in Tunbridge Wells, but Cllr Daley said both were still too far away for people in agony to travel to.

Maidstone and Tunbridge Wells NHS Trust is currently undertaking a detailed audit to determine the potential level of demand for a more local pain management programme.

Cllr Daley added: "I've recently had need to become involved in pain management and have had to make frequent trips to Guy's Hospital (in south-east London), and I don't think that's a very good idea.

"If NHS West Kent can't do better than this, and much more quickly than this, then I think it's very sad."

According to the Chief Medical Officer's report of 2008, repeated surveys show chronic pain – including severe headaches, back problems and arthritis – is two or three times more common now than it was 40 years ago.

There are 7.8 million people in the UK living with chronic pain, with three in 10 Kent residents having experienced it in the last year.

Dr Jon Norman, a consultant anaesthetist and pain medicine specialist at Maidstone and Tunbridge Wells NHS Trust, revealed there will be no room for a chronic pain clinic at Maidstone until July next year at the earliest.

He added that while there was a lack of facilities in some parts of the west of the county, patients still have access to a good service and waiting times have been reduced dramatically.

He told Cllr Daley: "The situation is not ideal but it's an awful lot better than it was and is better than large swathes of the country.

"We want to continue moving in the right direction but there are no guarantees about funding. It's very easy to sit there and tell me something needs to be done, but someone needs to give us the investment."

LUMBERED: Patients in west Kent have fewer options and are forced to travel further for chronic pain treatment

Calling all Kent young chefs ...

ASPIRING young chefs will be tempting taste buds as they compete in the Kent Young Chef Award 2010.

JULIE MONKMAN

Organised by Produced in Kent, the competition gives secondary school students the chance to flex their culinary muscles.

By designing a main course recipe for two people, created from local and seasonal produce, two lucky winners will earn the chance to cook at a very special event. Julie Monkman, manager of Produced in Kent, said the competition targeted secondary school children in order to capture their imaginations and prompt an early interest in cooking.

"We had a great response last year, with 184 entries from 47 schools," she said. "We felt it was fantastic for a first year and this year we needed to find a way to make it bigger and better. Because of the success of the first event, we've got more sponsors on board, which is good. It has meant we are able to do a bit more in terms of prizes and our ability to promote the contest through more channels."

A winner will be chosen from each age group – years seven to eight and years nine to 11 – and the two victors will have the chance to help design the menu for a charity dinner, to be held in January in aid of Kent Air Ambulance. They will also cook on the night, alongside Claire Wood, head chef at Woods Restaurant in Tunbridge Wells, one of the award's sponsors.

"We think it's a fantastic idea and a great prize for two winners to get involved to that extent. It's an example of how we've developed the competition," Ms Monkman said.

"We decided to add a little incentive, because what we really need to make it successful is for teachers to get on board. We found that last year, when teachers got involved, we got really great entries and teachers came along to the final cook-off. The school that submits the most entries will get two tickets for the charity dinner."

Although interest in healthy eating and the provenance of food have increased, Produced in Kent is still keen to promote the message that buying locally and seasonally is best.

"Supermarkets have created a situation where people can get hold of whatever they want at any time of year, even strawberries in winter. Supermarkets will say they are meeting demand, but we say let's go back to eating locally and seasonally."

Entries for the Kent Young Chef Award must be received before Friday, October 29. Entry forms, recipe criteria and rules can be found online at www.producedinkent.co.uk.

Tuition fee hikes 'risk generation of wasted talent'

REMOVING the cap on university tuition fees could "create a generation of wasted talent" and push out students from middle-class families.

Representatives at some of the county's universities said they were shocked at Lord Browne's report, which proposed radical reform of the system, and said the right to education needed to be protected. Plans include abolishing the £3,290 a year cap on tuition fees, which could lead to top universities charging up to £20,000 a year.

Despite recommendations by Lord Browne that a levy be paid by those who charge more than £6,000, Lauren Crowley, vice-president (Education) of Kent University, the student voice for the University of Kent, said this will not stop some putting up fees.

LAUREN CROWLEY

"Oxbridge and the Russell Group universities will put their fees up to the top end of the scale," she said. "Kent will have to make changes to keep up its reputation."

"If changes come in students will be leaving university with at least £35,000 debt in top institutions," she said. "At the moment the average is £20,000-25,000. The middle classes are the ones who would be hit."

"Poorer families are quite well looked after, but students from middle-class backgrounds are £5,000 more in debt."

She said Kent students would be joining the National Union of Students (NUS) and the University and College Union (UCU) for a national Fund Our Future demonstration on November 10.

Written off

Other recommendations are for the interest rate on loans, which is currently 1.5 per cent, to rise to inflation plus 2.2 per cent; that all students are eligible for flat-rate living-cost loans of £3,750; and unpaid students debts are written off after 30 years instead of 25.

Another proposal is that students would not start repaying their debt until their earnings reached £21,000, instead of the current £15,000.

If Government accepts the recommendations they could be introduced from 2012.

Professor Jan Druker, senior pro-vice-chancellor of Canterbury Christ Church University, said it would be hard to avoid increasing fees if the review removes most of the teaching fund, as expected.

"A rise from £3,290 a year to £6,000 is likely to hit families very hard," she said. "We have encouraged students who may not have traditionally had the opportunity or confidence to continue onto higher education to realise their dreams. A rise in fees may be a deterrent to those students."

Prof Elaine Thomas, vice-chancellor of the University of the Creative Arts, which has campuses in Canterbury, Maidstone and Rochester, said UCA had mixed views.

"In the current economic climate, a review of higher education funding is necessary and raising tuition fees represents the best way forward," she said.

"However, we must make certain that the increased cost to students and families does not stop talented people from going to university."

"Mechanisms must be put in place to enable students to study at the institution of their choice, otherwise I fear we could create a generation of wasted talent."

Vice-chancellor of the University of Kent, Prof Dame Julia Goodfellow, said increased graduate contribution was inevitable: "The prices have to be seen in the light of expected massive cuts in the teaching grant to universities which subsidise students."

Good, honest food – and a lift home

■ The Harrow Inn

THE Harrow Inn at Lidsing has the best of both worlds when it comes to location.

It is set in the heart of the beautiful Kent countryside, yet close to towns and villages.

Lordwood, Rainham, Walderslade and Hempstead are just five minutes away and 10 minutes away are Gillingham and Chatham.

The pub is a family-run business with its motto "No one will ever leave the Harrow Inn hungry" fully justified by an excellent menu.

It is a country pub – rather than a restaurant – that serves fresh, good, honest food. The menu include moulles marinieres, Aberdeen Angus burgers, mushroom ravioli and a rack of barbecue ribs.

Desserts include baked Alaska and hot chocolate fudge cake.

Theme nights are extremely popular and live music is set to be introduced.

The next big event is a Hallowe'en and fireworks party on Saturday, October 30.

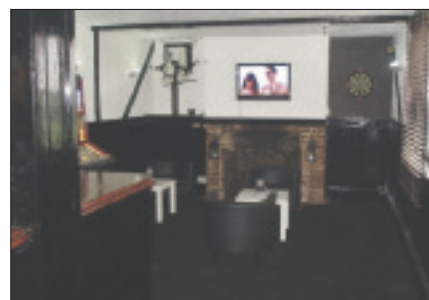

Other planned events include children's parties and games, free barbecues and fancy dress parties.

All requests from customers are met to the best of the abilities of the experienced staff and a free courtesy car is provided for guests within a four-mile radius.

A loyalty card is also on offer, and staff say they always ensure that guests have their expectations exceeded.

Functions can be catered for and the pub has a large garden. Full details are available at www.theharrowinn.com and on Facebook at The Harrow Inn.

Quality food in a traditional setting

■ The Three Tuns

THE popular Three Tuns pub in Lower Halstow was built in 1468 and has had an ale licence since 1764.

Chris and Carol Haines took on the pub in April with the idea of having a quality restaurant in a traditional country pub.

They trained in France and worked in top hotels and the hospitality business for 15 years and use their experience to make dining at the Three Tuns a memorable experience.

Chris grew up in Lower Halstow, so the last year has been a homecoming for him.

The kitchen serves two menus: the Bar menu for light lunches and casual dining is served from noon to 9pm seven days a week and the restaurant menu is served from noon to 2pm and 6pm to 9pm Monday to Saturday, aimed at a special occasion dining experience in an informal setting.

Sunday roasts are served from noon to 9pm every Sunday. Where possible the food is sourced locally and everything is homemade from the desserts to the burgers.

The restaurant seats approx 34 covers and the bar 30. We also cater for functions, from a hog roast for 100 guests in the garden, to a christening or afternoon tea for 20 in the bar.

The pub sits on the side of the village stream and is a very popular destination for walkers.

The first Wednesday of every month sees a quiz night, with music on the third Monday. Christmas bookings are now being taken.

Online Face-off falls a little flat as it takes on big-screen status

■ BY DAMON SMITH

ON JULY 21 this year, social networking site Facebook proudly welcomed its 500 millionth user to the online fold.

It's a mind-boggling statistic, even more so when you consider that seven years ago, no-one had heard of the site. Indeed, it didn't exist.

In less than a decade, an idea born in the hallowed corridors of Harvard University has quite literally taken over the world and changed the way we communicate.

As one of the characters in The Social Network, David Fincher's expertly crafted film about the creation of the site, quips: "Bosnians – they don't have roads but they have Facebook."

Turbulent

Like all good ideas, the site has made its creators very wealthy, but as Ben Mezrich's book The Accidental Billionaires chronicled, the turbulent history of Facebook led to not just one but two lawsuits.

Working from a screenplay by Aaron Sorkin, Fincher employs a fractured chronology to dissect the jealousy and betrayal which underpinned the success of the site.

The Social Network opens by introducing central protagonist Mark Zuckerberg (Jesse Eisenberg), a computer nerd whose lack of social skills become apparent as he is deservedly dumped by his girlfriend (Rooney Mara).

In revenge, Mark spews bile in an online blog then creates a crude website called facemash.com, which racks up "22,000 hits in two hours" and brings the nerd to the attention of Divya Narendra (Max Minghella) and the Winklevoss twins (Armie Hammer), who want Mark to program their internal social networking site called HarvardConnection.

Soon after, Mark approaches friends Eduardo Saverin (Andrew Garfield), Dustin Moskowitz (Joseph Mazzello) and Chris Hughes (Patrick Mapel) with an almost identical idea.

The whole campus excitedly logs on and the friends expand to Stanford and eventually across the Atlantic, before Sean Parker (Justin Timberlake), the entrepreneur behind Napster, becomes involved and offers Mark his advice.

"Drop the 'The'. Just Facebook. It's cleaner."

Flawless

The Social Network is technically flawless, powered by Fincher's dazzling direction, including a bravura rowing sequence at Henley Regatta set to a reworking of Grieg's In The Hall Of The Mountain King.

Sorkin's screenplay is equally polished – so much so that characters speak without hesitation or pause for thought, which strains credibility, even at one of America's most revered seats of learning.

Eisenberg's compelling, one-note performance fails to reveal any chinks of humanity beneath Zuckerberg's thick skin.

Indeed, to the final frame, the character is an emotionally cold and unsympathetic loner, which leaves us with no-one to root for as the legal battle turns nasty.

Garfield is much more likeable and when he vows revenge against Mark, seething, "I'm not coming back for 30 per cent, I'm coming back for everything", it's the closest we come to a rush of adrenaline.

FACING FACTS: Jesse Eisenberg as Mark Zuckerberg and Joseph Mazzello as Dustin Moskowitz make online history in The Social Network

HEIRS AND GRACES: Intrigue and polite conversation over dinner at Downton Abbey

YOUR TV REVIEW DOWNTON ABBEY: ITV, 9pm, Sunday

■ BY JENNY ARMSTRONG

FOR a highbrow insight into the dying days of the British aristocracy, and a stonking period drama to boot, Downton Abbey is the one to watch.

ITV's newest costume drama is set in a great country house in 1912. It details many of the upstairs-downstairs dichotomies prevalent in stately homes at the time.

The first introduction we have to the house is finding that the Duke of Grantham's two heirs have been wiped out by the sinking of the Titanic. It soon becomes clear the next in line to the title and estate is not one of its well-bred inmates but a distant middle-class relative who works as a lawyer in Manchester (a concept still alien to the aristocracy).

One of the fortés of this drama is that it doesn't shy away from the bigoted attitudes of the time in favour of a light-hearted story.

Many of those inside Downton, servants and family alike, are quick to condemn the new heir and his mother for being 'not our sort of people'.

The Duke of Grantham's (Hugh Bonneville) quiet and noble new valet John Bates (Brendan Coyle) has a limp due to a shrapnel injury picked up in the Boer War, and he is treated as a drain on resources by footmen and maids. The blatant and accepted discrimination makes the watcher feel proud of modern political correctness and disability compliance laws.

The gay footman being treated as a guilty, disposable secret by his titled lover makes today's society seem far more advanced by comparison.

The drama has a stellar cast including Maggie Smith, known to younger viewers as Professor McGonagall from Harry Potter, costume drama veteran Hugh Bonneville and Brendan Coyle, lately of Lark Rise to Candleford.

The plot and dialogue are both compelling, as are the more seasoned actors and actresses, of which there are many. Although less practised, the younger cast members put in admirable performances and add freshness to what could otherwise have been a stuffy show.

The story follows both the aristocratic family and the servants, ensuring plenty of promising storylines to follow.

An understated and intriguing drama, if Downton Abbey continues in the same vein it will have me hooked all series.

DON'T FRET: The Battle of the Blues contest is seeking talented jazz musicians

■ BY SIMON ROBINSON

BLUES bands are being invited to take part in a nationwide talent search which will see the UK's top unsigned act being flown out to Canada to perform at a world-renowned festival.

The Battle of the Blues contest is being led by the Canadian province of New Brunswick, which is offering the overall winner the opportunity of performing at the Harvest Jazz and Blues Festival in Fredericton in September, 2011.

Competition organiser Lisa Gagnon appealed for the county's top jazz and blues stars to put their name forward.

She said: "The Harvest Jazz and Blues Festival is looking for new international talent to add to their line-up for 2011 and we feel the UK has a lot to offer in the way of exceptional blues musicians."

"We want to tap into the blues scene and find some real gems."

Entry to the first stage of the competition is via YouTube. The deadline for applicants is Friday, December 17.

Successful musicians will then be selected to perform at a one-night battle of the bands-style heat at The New Crawdaddy Blues Club in Billericay, Essex, on Thursday, January 27.

The regional winners will travel to London for the final to be held on Tuesday, March 29, and judged by a panel of blues greats.

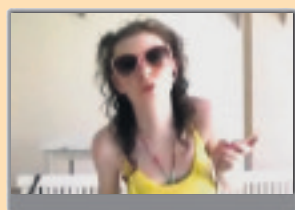

Regional runners-up will be put to a public vote and the public choices will also get to perform on the London stage.

But there can only be one outright UK winner and they must prove they can produce new and original work and they must be unsigned.

For more information about the competition, visit www.tourismnewbrunswick.co.uk.

Why not soak up the heart and soul of Flemish city life

■ BY NICK AMES

BEER, chocolates and trams together with a large part of the history of the two world wars are immediately associated with our neighbour across the water, Belgium.

So is classical-style architecture, good food and art.

But soul music?

The resort of Ostend boasts numerous attractions, including access to the world's largest tram network, which covers the entire Belgian coast from the French to the Dutch border.

There is even a display in a seafront museum dedicated to the history of this form of transport, with vintage rolling stock – which has served the country for 125 years. In the centre of the attractive town is a museum dedicated to the weird and wonderful satirical works of James Ensor, who satirised the ruling classes in the late 19th and early 20th Centuries.

A walk through the town with an iPod provided by the local tourist board is an illuminating way of looking at his inspirations.

Nearby is a section of the German Atlantic Wall which was built to defend the occupied country against the expected Allied invasion.

The Germans abandoned it though as the British, Americans and Canadians advanced from the south and it is now among the best preserved examples of the military of the Third Reich anywhere in the world.

But Ostend has a very interesting former resident – more usually associated with Detroit than Flanders.

On the advice of Belgian concert promoter Freddy Cousaert, soul legend Marvin Gaye (pictured) moved to the town in February 1981 where for a time he cut down on drugs and began to get back in shape both physically and emotionally.

He was also in a little bit of trouble with the tax authorities back home.

While in Belgium, Gaye began to make plans to renew his declining fortunes in his professional career, starting with a tour he titled The Heavy Love Affair Tour in England.

The tour ended with two concert dates in Ostend. A documentary leading up to his Belgian concert performances titled Transit Ostend was initially released to just Belgian fans, and was later issued in bootleg copies following Gaye's death.

"Marvin was a special man, very distinguished, very impressive, but it was like Dr Jekyll and Mr Hyde," said Monique Licht, an independent film producer in Belgium who worked with Gaye on a 30-minute film for Belgian television, 1981's Marvin Gaye: Transit Ostend.

"At times, he was like an elegant zombie walking along the beach in Ostend," said Ms Licht. "He was there, but at the same time he was not there."

"He was happy alone in front of the sea. In my opinion, he should have stayed in Ostend. I don't understand why he went back to the States. If he had stayed, he might still be alive today."

Those who knew the soul star in the town say it is the sort of place where visitors are left alone but welcomed whenever they seek company.

Ostend has been welcoming visitors from Britain for years and English is widely spoken.

The streets are thronged with restaurants and bars, with the local beer among the best in the world.

As well as the art and culture, the town boasts excellent shopping opportunities and a thriving arts scene.

Railways connect it to the rest of Europe and the marina, with its tall ship, is spectacular.

And it has one mystery connected with its music legend.

Everyone says the piano on which Gaye composed Sexual Healing is around. But no-one knows exactly where it is.

MOTORS NEWS

Used Mondeo currently most affordable Ford

WHAT Car? has named the diesel Ford Mondeo 2.0 TDCi Zetec hatchback Used Car of the Year 2010.

Just £8,600 buys a 2007 model with all the kit and space a family will ever need – a saving of more than £10,000 on a new Ford Mondeo.

The magazine's editor Steve Fowler said: "It's a comfortable cruiser for covering motorway miles, yet it's still great fun to drive and makes an extremely capable family car. There's loads of cabin space, plus it's solid and well put together."

Record-breaking Passat keeps going on and on VOLKSWAGEN'S Passat BlueMotion (from £19,365) has set a new Guinness World Record for the longest distance travelled by a standard production passenger car on a tank of fuel.

The three-day record bid started from Maidstone and went to the South of France and almost made it back; the Passat finally ran out of fuel close to Calais after covering 1,526.63 miles, averaging nearly 90mpg – 50 per cent better than its claimed average – and averaging 45 mph, all from 77.25 litres of diesel.

Extra E is the greenest

SEAT'S greenest Ecomotive models will be even easier to spot under a new badge structure.

To coincide with the UK launch of the all-new seven-seat Alhambra MPV – which boasts a class-leading 'green' version – and the arrival of the latest generation Ibiza Ecomotive supermini with emissions slashed to a road tax-exempt 92g/km, the VW-owned Spanish marque has come up with the E Ecomotive badge (pictured) to denote models with the ultimate eco-friendly spec, while the simple Ecomotive label continues on those with a reduced green shading.

LITTLE WONDER: Suzuki's Jimny is an acquired taste on the road, but its long travel suspension gives it excellent off-road ability for a fraction of the cost of its larger rival 4x4s you might expect, but it is fidgety – don't buy a Jimny just for posing.

Those riding in front get a decent deal and the high driving position is superb for such a compact car, but the rear seats are really suitable only for kids and the boot is minimalist.

There is also no choice of engine and though the little 85bhp 1,328cc petrol engine and low gearing delivers good off-roading, the Jimny is one of the slowest cars you can buy.

However, the gears and steering are crisp so you can enjoy piloting this little workhorse around with an average economy around 40mpg and it will cruise at 70mph, though the cabin is noisy.

Fixtures and fittings are as durable and functional as you might expect on this type of car, though the indicator stalk is mounted on the right – most of us now prefer a Continental-style mounting on the left.

Buy it for the right reasons though and the Suzuki is unbeatable and indestructible.

Most of the time you can run in economical two-wheel drive, via the rear axle, but hit the '4WD' and even the low ratio '4WDL' button for extra purchase.

PROPERTY NEWS

First-time buyers may face decade of misery

THE current problems in the mortgage market could take a decade to fix, excluding a generation of first-time buyers from getting on to the property ladder, a report has suggested.

The number of mortgages taken out by people with only a ten per cent deposit, loans which are typically associated with first-time buyers, fell dramatically from 245,000 in 2006, to just 28,000 in 2009 – an 89 per cent fall, according to insurer Genworth Financial.

The group said the decrease suggested around 100,000 first-time buyers were excluded from getting on to the property ladder each year during the period.

Angel Mas, president of mortgage insurance Europe at Genworth Financial, said: "The barrier to home ownership appears to be widening, with increasing numbers of first-time buyers excluded – a shocking 100,000 year-on-year between 2006 and 2009.

"The estimation in this report that this is a situation that could take decades, not years, to recover raises real concerns that a whole generation may be excluded from getting a foot on to the housing ladder."

Mortgages reform is not viable proposition

PROPOSALS by the Financial Services Authority (FSA) to reform the mortgage market could leave many potential borrowers in danger of being unable to obtain what it is they require, according to What Mortgage.

Earlier in the year the FSA recommended imposing affordability tests for all mortgages and making lenders ultimately responsible for ensuring the borrower's ability to pay, as well as providing extra protection for vulnerable customers.

However, the Council of Mortgage Lenders (CML) responded by saying that has these changes been in effect from 2005, around 3.8 million 'good' house purchase loans may not have been granted.

Ben Wilkie, editor of What Mortgage, said the FSA needs to listen to industry voices like the CML and in any case, lenders already take steps to reduce their risk.

"Making a cut off for first-time buyers would ruin it for people who want to move house, people who want to remortgage, people who want to invest in property or people who want to downsize when they retire," he added.

IMF predicting double dip for the UK housing market

■ BY NICK AMES

A WARNING has been issued by one of the most respected financial organisations in the world over the immediate future of the housing market.

The International Monetary Fund (IMF) has suggested the UK property market could experience a double dip.

In its latest World Economic Outlook, the IMF highlighted that despite Government efforts to boost the housing market and encourage first-time buyers, UK house prices could still be in line for "further correction".

The IMF was referring to the two stamp duty holidays.

"What remains worrisome (about the UK), however, is that house prices are still high based on traditional valuation yardsticks, and policy support may not be enough to prevent further correction," the Fund said.

The IMF points out that a slump in activity had been experienced after a first stamp duty holiday ended in December 2009.

In March 2010, the former Labour Government abolished stamp duty on house purchases up to £250,000 for two years.

The Government said the change would mean 90 per cent of first-time buyers will not pay the duty.

However, despite efforts by the Government, the fact remains that mortgages are less readily available and approvals have slumped. Demand remains at 50 per cent of the level seen prior to the credit crunch.

Meanwhile, the Halifax revealed UK house prices fell by a record 3.6 per cent in September compared with August.

The latest house price fall takes the average cost of a UK home to £162,096, the Halifax said. According to the lender, the monthly decline was the biggest since records began in 1983.

However, it is still too soon to suggest that this is the start of a slump in house prices. The fall in house prices has been attributed to a high level of instructions on the market but a lack of buyer demand, according to many reports.

The uncertainty surrounding the economy is also having a negative impact on the housing market and therefore the market is likely to remain subdued in the short term.

MAKING THE NEWS: September saw the average price of a UK home fall to £162,096, the biggest drop since 1983

However, exact details of the market continue to vary across the UK.

The South East has been among the most resilient when it comes to prices and forecasts and predictions can be distorted by poor performances in the market in the north of England.

Critics of the IMF say the British housing market is unique though and once people feel secure about their future and banks start making mortgages available the housing market will pick up.

People have to live somewhere and British people prefer to buy rather than rent.

Lure of living abroad holds biggest appeal to the British

BRITISH people are unique in the world in their enthusiasm for buying foreign property, according to the Digital Property Group.

The company's head of content Nigel Lewis said there are now around two million British citizens living abroad.

He said: "Obviously that is a mixture of business people working overseas in places like Singapore, but the majority are people who have retired or have holiday homes and live overseas for parts of the year," he said.

Interest in buying foreign property peaked in September, figures from the Worldwide Property Group have revealed, with 72 per cent of people saying they think now is a good time to invest.

The US, Spain and the Caribbean were considered the best places to buy, while Brazil also ranked highly. European countries such as France and Spain also remain popular.

DISAPPOINTED: Dan Caprice and England came fourth in Delhi

Caprice bemoans missed medal opportunity

CHATHAM'S Dan Caprice admitted England simply did not perform at the crucial time as they missed out on rugby sevens bronze at the Commonwealth Games.

The 20-year-old was one of the individual stars of England's campaign, but insisted no personal glory could make up for leaving the tournament empty-handed.

Leading South Africa 14-5 with three minutes remaining, England and Caprice looked set for a medal, but two late Springbok tries shattered their Delhi dream.

"We didn't fully perform against South Africa as we did on day one," Caprice said. "We were in a position, with three minutes to go, to win it and on any other day we'd have kicked to touch. We had a chance to win a bronze medal but these things happen and we made the wrong decision."

"We're a team at the end of the day, we'd gone out to win a medal and in that respect, we failed. It was a tough couple of days, but it was a good experience because I'd never played that much sevens and it was good to get game-time. On reflection, though, it was a shame because we didn't get a medal."

Caprice scored two tries as England beat Australia to clinch top-spot in Pool D, but they then had to face Samoa and eventual winners New Zealand in the knockout stages.

He said: "Looking back, if we had lost the match [against Australia], we'd maybe have had an easier run to the final against Kenya and South Africa. It was good to beat them but it didn't count for anything more than pride."

Italian job moves Haines up rankings

MATT Haines moved into the European Challenge Tour top-20 rankings after a fine tied third-placed finish at the Roma Golf Open.

The Rochester & Cobham Park golfer, who only turned professional in May, was in contention for his first victory on the tour up until a mediocre third round.

The 20-year-old led the tournament outright at the end of day one after carding the lowest round of his fledgling professional career with a seven-under-par 64. He continued to impress in the second round with a four-under-par 67, which saw him share the lead with Denmark's Andreas Hartø.

Haines' charge slipped during the third round as two bogeys and a double bogey saw him drop away from the leaders. He picked up his game in the final round, but his four-under-par 67 was only good enough for tied third spot.

Haines has moved up to 17th in the Challenge Tour rankings, with the top-15 being awarded a European Tour card for next season.

Draw on the road gives Gills hope in hunt for an away win

FOOTBALL

BY GLENN PEARSON

Port Vale 0

Gillingham 0

FOR the first time this season Gillingham finally showed they have what it takes to pick up points on the road.

While it wasn't all three, which meant bringing up an unwanted record of 32 games without a win away from Priestfield, Andy Hessenthaler's side showed some resolve to in some way make up for the embarrassing 7-4 horror show at Accrington.

Vale were top of League Two going into the game, but it was the Gills who looked the better of the two sides, as they had the majority of possession and the more clear cut chances.

In the first-half, Tony Sinclair's effort had to be cleared off the line, while the versatile Mark Bentley, back after a one-game suspension for a red card picked up at Accrington, hit a post with an angled drive deep in the second-half.

Sinclair and Matt Lawrence were again paired at the back and it's no coincidence the Gills have looked more assured with this partnership.

The point at Vale was made all the more sweeter as the Gills had to do without first choice strikers Adebayor Akinfenwa and Cody McDonald who were both injured, which meant a starting berth for the fit again Dennis Oli.

Vale manager Micky Adams, himself a former Gills player, admitted after the game that his side were perhaps lucky to have come away without a defeat – a point echoed by Hessenthaler.

He told the club's website: "I thought we deserved to win it. We were the better side over the 90 minutes."

"We've had to question ourselves as a group over the last few weeks, especially after the last away game at Accrington. I think you could see from our fans' reaction that the players wore their heart on their sleeves and put a really good shift in."

"On a different day, that shot from Benno would have gone in, I don't think they would have come back from that and we could have won 1-0. That didn't happen but it's not for the lack of trying. I thought they wore their shirts with pride."

Gillingham starting XI

Subs used McCammon (Oli 78), S Payne (Weston 78),

Whether it is the start of something remains to be seen, but with Torquay visiting Priestfield on Saturday, it's the chance for Gillingham to embark on an unbeaten run as they look to make a move up the League Two table.

Hessenthaler said: "There is a togetherness now in the dressing room and collectively those players want to do well for the football club."

"That is what I demanded when I came back to the club and that will benefit us towards the end of the season."

Referee caught up in storm over injured title challenger

BOXING

BY MICK WATKINS

STROOD referee Ian John-Lewis has come under fire for his handling of Saturday's WBC heavyweight title fight, which left American challenger Shannon Briggs in an intensive care unit in a German hospital.

John-Lewis, 47, who works as a detention officer, is an experienced official and former professional fighter who was taking charge of his first world heavyweight title fight.

However, he has been criticised in the aftermath of the 12-round beating reigning champion Vitali Klitschko, 39, of the Ukraine, dished out to Briggs, 38, from Brooklyn, New York.

On Sunday it was reported that Briggs had been taken to hospital from the O2 World Arena, in Hamburg, suffering from fractured cheekbones, concussion and a torn left bicep.

Pre-fight predictions were that Briggs, a 58-fight veteran, and former WBO title holder who once fought Britain's Lennox Lewis, stood little chance of dethroning Klitschko, who was making the fifth defence of his WBC belt.

BEATING: Ian John-Lewis has been criticised for failing to spare Shannon Briggs from unnecessary punishment

After six rounds the challenger had not won a single round and his punch-rate had dropped. He bravely kept stalking the champion, who kept Briggs on the end of his punches and landed jabs and solid right hands over the top of the challengers' low guard.

Briggs should have been spared the sustained beating he took in the latter stages. Rounds ten to 12 were painful to watch as clean punches clattered off his heavily dreadlocked head. Although he had the satisfaction of finishing the fight on his feet, he had been allowed to fight way beyond the call of duty.

The three judges' scorecards read 120-107 twice and 120-105, underlining the champion's complete dominance.

The one-sided nature of the contest made for uncomfortable viewing in the later rounds, with Briggs taking big punches but offering minimal offensive resistance in return.

Afterward, John-Lewis was reported to say "These guys are tough and as long as a man fights back, you have to give him a chance", but at no point did Briggs look like turning the fight in his favour.

When contacted by Yourmedway on Monday John-Lewis was unable to speak on the record regarding his handling of the fight under the instructions of British Boxing Board of Control secretary, Robert Smith.

One can only assume as John-Lewis was the man closest to the action, he felt Briggs was in a fit enough state to continue despite the one-sided nature of the fight.

Hindsight is a wonderful thing, and one can understand the criticism being directed at the Kent official for failing to stop the fight. But to blame him alone would be unfair as the WBC officials, the ringside doctor and challenger's corner also failed to do their duty and save the challenger from unnecessary punishment.

Seeing as John-Lewis, ironically, is unable to defend himself in this report, one can only say that it was the sport of boxing that failed Shannon Briggs on Saturday.

Mos sting Hornets in seven-goal thriller

Invicta Dynamos 4 Bracknell Hornets 3

A MICHAEL Timms brace helped the Invicta Dynamos edge a close game with Bracknell Hornets to keep the Gillingham-based side top of ENIHL Division 1 South.

The win made it five in a row for the Mos, who sit top of the league by a point from Oxford and with two games in hand.

As so often in recent weeks, the Dynamos got off to a flying start on Sunday evening, netting as early as three minutes when Canadian Daniel Borges set up Liam Chong for his seventh of the season.

That lead was extended midway through the first frame when the in-form Daniel Calitri beat netminder David Wride from a tight angle to put his side 2-0 up.

The visitors hauled themselves back in the game shortly before the interval when, on the powerplay, Tony Barclay forced a shot past Andrew Dickson.

It took just seven minutes of the second period for the home side to regain their two-goal lead, when Timms slammed home after a goalmouth scramble.

The Hornets pulled a goal back shortly after through a Radek Simecek goal. It meant for a nervy final frame at the Silver Blades Ice Rink, especially when Bracknell pulled level through Danny Hughes, despite the Hornets being two men down.

However, parity didn't last long as Timms converted a Wride effort three minutes before the buzzer to clinch a thrilling victory.

The Dynamos are in action on Sunday when they take on the Chelmsford Chieftains in Gillingham. Face-off is at 5.15pm.

Beaten Chats still haunted by Brickies jinx

FOOTBALL

Chatham Town 1 Sittingbourne 2

CHATHAM Town found their Sittingbourne jinx in full working order as they slipped to yet another defeat against their local arch-rivals in Saturday's rearranged Ryman South game.

The Chats have not beaten the Brickies since Boxing Day, 2003, though they enjoyed the better of the exchanges in a dull first-half with Nick Hegley twice going close.

But manager Paul Foley refused to be downhearted. "I'm not the sort that gets like that," he said. "We were in a far worse position this time last season and I know we'll improve. I'm not interested in this jinx thing with Sittingbourne. What I do know is that we played well against them."

"We certainly had the better of the first-half chances and while I have no complaints with their penalty, I was unhappy with our defensive play before that."

"Though we handed them a soft second goal,

I thought we did enough to get something out of the game."

"We're on a lean run at the moment, which I'm determined to turn around. I'm sure better results are just around the corner."

One of Foley's chief reasons for optimism is the arrival of the prolific Leroy Huggins who scored his second goal in as many games after getting off the mark in midweek against Concord Rangers.

Foley knows him well from their time together at VCD and the manager predicted: "He has a proven goalscoring pedigree at this level and I'm sure he will carry on scoring for us."

Sittingbourne opened the scoring in the 52nd-minute through a twice taken penalty, finally converted by Paul Semakula, but the Chats were on level terms within two minutes through Huggins.

But the Brickies, who had beaten Chatham 2-0 a month ago, collected maximum points two minutes later when Tom Bradbrook netted.

Defeat leaves the Chats in 14th position with 12 points from 11 games.
